Important Notice in To-morrow's Paper! Don't Miss it!

D. HUNT & SON

Master John Armstrong is still quite ill at the home of his parents on Forest avenue.

James L. Conroy, ex-Chief of the fire department at Mt. Sterling and prominent among A. O. U. W. and Red Men, died suddenly of heart failure Wednesday. He was a cousin of Mr. Henry Shea of this city.

Not long since an undertaker living in a neighboring county when he came to die left instructions that his burial be at midnight, which was faithfully carried out by his family. His reason for so strange a request was that having seen so much pomp and show carried on at funerals all his life, he was utterly tired and disgusted thereat and wished his own obsequies to be carried on in a way and at a time when such things would have no place.

Mr. Charles Duke Perrine, of Moransburg, who graduated Thursday from the State College, Lexington, has obtained a position at Ludlow in the mechanical and engineering department of the Cincinnati Southern railway. Mr. J. J. Thompson, Jr., of Fern Leaf, another one of the graduates, has obtained a similar position with the Queen City Supply Company of Cincinnati. The school of mechanical and electrical engineering of the State College has attained a national reputation. The graduates from this department Thursday have all obtained places and will enter in a short time upon the duties.

Dr. Ellis is in receipt of a letter from his brother, George, who is a large landowner in Sumner County, Kansas,—the banner wheat county of that State,—saying that, although the Arkansas valley has not suffered as much as the valley of the Kaw, yet the loss to the farmers almost beggars description. For many weeks there have been destructive showers, alternating with hot winds and scorching days. The floods have destroyed almost all the crops on the lowlands. The wheat fields have turned white, while the weeds, getting the start on the croplands, have made the country look like a great green meadow. Mr. Ellis says that the calamity that faces the people of Kansas has to be seen and felt to be realized. No newspaper accounts paint the catastrophe as it really exists.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES.

Mrs. Wm. F. Hall's Reception Thursday Afternoon One of the Most Enjoyable Events of the Season.

With wealth and flowers, innate hospitality and gracious, beaming countenance irradiating these attributes, Mrs. Wm. F. Hall yesterday afternoon received her friends from 4 to 6 o'clock at her very beautiful home, corner of Lexington street and Forest avenue.

Opulent nature had arranged the trees, lawn, palms and flowers on the spacious area which surrounds the home, while artists had deftly caught a curtain here or arranged a bunch of roses there until the interior was a veritable conservatory amid which the hundred guests, beautiful women,—maids and meedames,—toileted in fashion's latest decree, might roam at will, sipping the delicious frappe, eating the bonbons and being served with the delicacies which the season now affords.

Mrs. Hall stood at the head of the line which was in a semi-circle to the front of the parlor. She was gowned bewitchingly, and her genuine ability in dispensing hospitality never lagged. Assisting her were her sister, Mrs. James Adair, of the county, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Samuel M. Hall, her nieces, Mrs. James H. Hall, Miss Mary B. Hall and Miss Elizabeth Hall, the latter of Covington, and Meedames J. Edwin Parker, Edward H. Neibitt, Buckner W. Goodman and Miss Mary E. Richeson.

At the frappe table Miss Martha Stevenson and the Misses Wells presided. Soft strains of music floated out over the flower-laden air from the library, and the myriad of gas-jets and candles brilliantly lighted the whole scene which was resplendent with the social "400" of the "seven acre city." In the dining room the focal point of perfected art was reached, flowers to right, flowers to left—roses, sweet jasmynes, tulips and lilies—in vases, on cloth, waving from chandeliers, nodding from candelabra, silently telling in words of great welcome the guests to be seated for refreshments galore.

When the hour for departing came, as sweetest pleasure all must end too abruptly, with lingering footsteps still in the rose-laid path of happiness, the guests remained a while until the rude alarm bell of conscious knowledge awakened them from this beautiful dream into which they had been cast by the hospitality of the fair hostess.

DIED SUDDENLY.

Mr. James Lyston, of This City, Stricken With Apoplexy Thursday at Cincinnati.

Mr. James Lyston, whose home is at the southeast corner of Third and Sutton street, this city, died suddenly this morning of apoplexy, at Cincinnati where he has lately been employed by the Crane Lumber Company.

Mr. Lyston was about thirty-five years of age, and leaves a wife and one child. The bereaved wife, who has the sympathy of many friends in her sudden misfortune, is a sister of Messrs. Edward and Thomas D. Slattery.

The remains will be brought here on the 1:36 o'clock train this afternoon, and the funeral will take place Saturday at 9 a. m. at St. Patrick's Church. Interment at Washington.

GEORGE H. FRANK & CO.

There's no improvement in Mr. Charles Ham, of Washington, who remains very ill.

Lucy Cheney, a twelve-year-old negro girl, had a quarrel with Stella Johnson, aged seven, threatened to cut off her head with an ax, and might have succeeded had not some white folks interfered.

The annual children's day exercises will take place in the Flemingsburg Christian Church on Sunday, June 7th, at 7:30 p. m. An offering will be taken for foreign missions. A hearty invitation is extended to the public.

While Miss May Thomas, of Dover, was in Maysville Tuesday she was unfortunate in losing two rings at the hotel, leaving them in the toilet room. They were valued at $25. Later Miss Thomas left a pair of shoes belonging to Miss Ethel McMillan in some store at Maysville, and thus far has been unable to find them.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian S. Pearce, of Washington City, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Amanda Cheatham, to Mr. Anthony Ten Eyck Brown, Saturday, June 27th, at 6 p. m., 1819 Nineteenth street, Washington. The bride-elect is a granddaughter of Mr. Charles B. Pearce of the State National Bank.

John Fay, while building a wire fence near Millersburg, received a severe shock from a flash of lightning. The wire clippers were thrown out of his hands and the force of the blow seemed to strike him in the breast. Mr. Fay was so badly shocked that he couldn't guide himself, but continued to walk around a barn. He says he knew what he was doing, but couldn't go in any other direction.

Mr. Arthur Donovan, of the county, brought in a load of tobacco Thursday and, while unloading it at the Rains warehouse on West Third street, unhitched his horses and turned them loose in the lot back of the building. One of them, a valuable work mare, shortly afterwards landed at the bottom of an abandoned well. She went down tail-end first, and had to remain in this cramped, upright position until some men could dig her out. Aside from a few bruises she was not injured. The well was about fifteen feet deep and it took the men nearly two hours to dig her out.

In the case of the city of Richmond vs. Smith, decided by the Supreme Court of Virginia in January, 1903, the right of the city to permit an obstruction of its streets by a street fair is fully considered and decided. The Richmond Carnival Company was a Virginia corporation and by its charter was authorized to hold a carnival in the streets of Richmond, Va. The City Council granted the right to use the streets to the company, and Smith sued the city for permitting a nuisance. He recovered a judgment for $500. On appeal the Supreme Court sustained the judgment. The opinion is an exhaustive one, citing numerous authorities, and fully settles the question that a town granting such rights incurs grave responsibilities.
